
There's a "Bad Moon Rising" at FireLake Grand Casino

Shawnee, OK- Legendary songs from CCR can once again be heard in concert as Creedence Clearwater Revisited takes the stage at FireLake Grand on Friday, January 14th.

When the original Creedence Clearwater Revival broke up in 1972 and went their separate ways, the popularity of the music they had created carried on. Each of the band members continued in the music industry. Eventually, Stu Cook and Doug "Cosmo" Clifford decided at the urging of a friend to start playing the old CCR songs at private parties.

"We never really had any intention of playing for the public," says Stu. "But a friend wanted to promote a couple of concerts. We got talked into it, but didn't know how it would go over."

Needless to say, the legendary hits continue to speak to new generations. Creedence Clearwater Revisited has not only been successful in playing the hits of the past performing 100 concerts a year, they have also produced a double CD that went platinum.

The band has toured North and South America, Europe, Asia, and New Zealand. The concerts have been packed with fans that range from the baby boomers to newbies who were not even born when the songs first became hits.

In order to capture the original sound, Stu and Cosmo selected additional band members who could add the power and energy they needed. John Tristao became the lead singer and rhythm guitar player. Then they added Elliot Easton as lead guitar and multi-talented Steve Gunner who plays keyboard, harmonica, percussion, and acoustic guitar.
